Annual Report & Accounts

Including a 3-year summary & accounts 2022-2024

The Musique-Cordiale Trust

Charity registered in England,

No 1167732

The Musique-Cordiale Trust is an English charity. It supports and arranges concerts, educational opportunities for talented young musicians, especially through the annual Musique-Cordiale International Festival & Academy. It has emerged from the pandemic era and is again particularly supporting the Festival which attracts musicians from across Europe but especially from the UK. Among a few indoor performances in 2021, when the festival had to be cancelled, (this in Faversham's Assembly Rooms) was a Brahms Trio for Cello, piano & Clarinet and MOZART Piano quartet no 1 in G minor, BEETHOVEN: Septet for clarinet, bassoon, horn, violin, viola, cello & double bass & HOFMANN: Serenade for flute & strings (in Newnham church) and ALBINONI Oboe Concerto, James Hulme oboe (in Doddington church). The events supported in 2023 and 2024 have taken place in Kent, England and also, once again, in Provence in the south of France. 2024 was the festival's 20th annual edition. With a new but experienced team, the festival is planning its repertoire and detailed programme for its 21st annual iteration in the Pays de Fayence, Var, France in late July and early August 2025.

Le Musique-Cordiale Trust est une association caritative anglaise. Elle soutient et organise des concerts et des opportunités éducatives pour les jeunes musiciens talentueux, notamment par le biais du Festival international et de l'Académie Musique-Cordiale annuels. Elle est sortie de l'ère de la pandémie et soutient à nouveau particulièrement le Festival qui attire des musiciens de toute l'Europe, mais surtout du Royaume-Uni. Parmi les quelques représentations en salle en 2021, lorsque le festival a dû être annulé (ceci dans les Assembly Rooms de Faversham), il y avait un Trio de Brahms pour violoncelle, piano et clarinette et MOZART Quatuor avec piano n° 1 en sol mineur, BEETHOVEN : Septuor pour clarinette, basson, cor, violon, alto, violoncelle et contrebasse et HOFMANN : Sérénade pour flûte et cordes (dans l'église de Newnham) et ALBINONI Concerto pour hautbois, James Hulme hautbois (dans l'église de Doddington). Les événements soutenus en 2023 et 2024 ont eu lieu dans le Kent, en Angleterre, et aussi, une fois de plus, en Provence dans le sud de la France. L'édition 2024 du festival a été marquée par une 20e édition. Avec une équipe nouvelle mais expérimentée, le festival prépare son répertoire et son programme détaillé pour sa 21e édition annuelle dans le Pays de Fayence, Var, France, fin juillet et début août 2025.

The Musique-Cordiale Trust

The Musique-Cordiale Trust, a charity registered in England, was launched in June 2016. It raises funds to promote education and the arts, including the Musique Cordiale Festival & Academy, which was founded in 2005, and other forms of high-quality musical performance and education, through project-funding, small grants & bursaries.

The objects of the Trust are to promote education and the arts.

To further these objects, the Trust's goals include the promotion of European understanding of arts and music, the performance of high-quality music, the promotion of musical and artistic talent and the education of musicians from all over Europe.

This report focusses mainly on 2024 and does so in the context of how so many things changed, not always promisingly, in the years since our previous successful and optimistic year of performances and educational development in 2019. The years 2020-2022, following the emergence of the worldwide Covid-19 pandemic, proved to be a very difficult and different time for music and musicians and for charities which support and encourage them. The past two years since then have featured a slow and partial recovery. The Trust's income & activities were seriously curtailed in those pandemic years but they were not prevented altogether. Musique Cordiale managed to be resourceful and responsible and did not give in. It staged festivals and concerts throughout that time but with considerable challenges and the need to relocate from its traditional venues—as well as having to scale down its ambitions for a while. But 2023 saw a full revival and 2024 has seen the Trust and its associated French non-profit organisation, L'association Musique-Cordiale returning to their previous energetic path. From its inception, The Musique-Cordiale Trust has had a particular focus on:

- helping musicians and singers to participate in opportunities available from conservatoires, academies, schools or tuition, including, in particular, those offered via (or in association with) the Musique Cordiale International Festival and Academy or directly organised by the charity itself. Here, assistance has been given to enable musicians and singers to attend, to provide teaching or to participate in high-quality public per-performances. We are proud that, with the support of the Trust and courtesy of the efforts of many singers, musicians and loyal audiences, as well as generous and committed donors, we have succeeded in having an unbroken record of annual festivals since 2005 to date.

- supporting young musicians or singers who do not have access to funds for tuition, instruments or related costs of musical education
- raising and managing funds, so far on a modest scale, to help to support particular activities of music academies and conservatoires, mainly through courses, contributions to music festivals and concerts and by providing grants to enable the contributions of capable music teachers and professional musicians.

Activities & Public Benefit

The organisers of concerts, festivals and learning opportunities provided via public and educational media have attracted the interest of the trustees but their particular emphasis (and that of our donors) has been on supporting and sustaining the organisation and administration of the Musique-Cordiale Festival & Academy and its associated musical and educational activities in Britain and Europe. These have mainly focussed on its autumn weekends of choral, orchestral and ensemble music in Kent, GB (Musique Cordiale in Kent) and the annual international Festival in France each summer. 2019 was the 15th year in which the festival offered the chance for young talented musicians to play, learn, practise and perform together with older professionals in lovely acoustic medieval settings or to receive coaching from well-known players. It also runs a programme, directed by Graham Ross, director of music at Clare College, Cambridge, promoting high quality choral performance, including major oratorios and 'a cappella' singing. Unfortunately, the Covid - 19 pandemic meant that 2019 was the last year in which the Academy Cordiale could operate fully. In 2020 and even 2021, activities were severely curtailed or, in some cases, cancelled. The 2020 festival and academy was the main victim of this: most musicians, singers, students and audiences across Europe lost the chance of live rehearsal and performance which became impossible except alone or via virtual and zoom sessions. People have been resourceful and imaginative. Musical education and careers had to be put on ice and sometimes abandoned. For a while, 2020 was the year the music stopped. It is such a relief that by 2023 and 2024 much had been restored. But, even as choirs have bounced back and Musique Cordiale events continued and revived, there has been a big worldwide decline in participation in live classical music and schools, especially in the public sector, have often ceased to provide organised musical education. Even as we have also had to reduce our commitment to education of children and young talent, we are glad to have been able to continue to offer challenging and uplifting opportunities for young musicians to enhance their skills and reputations and to bring pleasure to discerning audiences while also attracting new interest and enthusiasm for the genre in a wider public.

- in normal years.... The Trust and the organisations and individuals that it supports has actively promoted opportunities and vehicles for musical education and promotion and, in particular but not exclusively, the Musique-Cordiale International Festival and Academy and rehearsals, concerts under the banner of Musique Cordiale in Kent. These has tended to attract high-calibre players (aged 15 + to the Academy, aged 18+ to the Festival and Kent ensembles, with several more experienced professional players who have life-long experience in major international orchestras of the world or as soloists and teachers). The choir attracts singers from renowned university and cathedral choirs as well as a larger number of older members of noted choirs, especially in Britain, Holland, Switzerland, Germany and France.

Summer festival concerts in Kent in 2020-2022 at a time when travel and the organisation the festivals and the academy in France was severely constrained, particularly indoors.

Annual Report 2025

This annual report is a double. It covers the financial years from 1 December 2021 to 30 November 2023. It also provides initial insights into the summer of 2024 and the promise of 2025 and the years to come

Unlike 2 other recent annual reports, the major items to report therefore largely cease to report on the immediate effect of the Covid-19 pandemic, including the much-reduced throughput of funds in Trust accounts in 2020 but also, unfortunately, in the following 2 years too. This time, we can report a gradual escape from all those limitations and a slow resurgence both of giving and of the activities that the trust supports and helps to organise. This is reflected in somewhat more promising financial results in 2023 and 2024 – though not yet up to the levels of more optimistic earlier years. This crimp on so much cultural activity and cross-cultural engagement, including ours, obviously derived from the virtual close-down of most forms of live music from March 2020. Initially this included the cancellation, well after it had been carefully programmed and organised, of the 2020 Musique-Cordiale International Festival & Academy, whose activities, musicians and students the Trust has supported over previous years. It then emerged that the 2021 and 2022 international Festivals would also have to fall victim to the same curtailment (and loss of optimism and opportunities for shared musicmaking across Europe, for which the Trust and its associated French non-profit Association Musique-Cordiale were founded and have always been dedicated).

The second UK lockdown in the autumn which the Trust itself previously managed December 2020 time-spot. So it was re-successful 3-day concert series in and 2019 – before the pandemic hit - and the doddington Place Gardens, which briefly allowed people to meet (entirely out-of-doors) to make music together (at a suitable enforced pre-vaccine distance) after a long gap. Sadly, this in 2020 had to happen without box office (and, therefore income) or the substantial ticketed audience that it deserved. But it was achieved in improbably beautiful English warmth and September sunshine. This could feature no role for members of the Festival Orchestra and there could be no Academy. Instead, just four hands on a keyboard (the accomplished Rebecca Taylor and Richard Leach) accompanied our choir, soloists (Frederick Long and Emily Vine) and conductor, Graham Ross, performing the Brahms Requiem. This was the major work that had been intended for the final 2 concerts of the international festival that summer. But at least some of our soloists and deprived choir-members (albeit only those based in the UK) were able to sing together again.

2020 also meant that none of the Autumn concerts, in Kent, could be organised in the usual October-warding that this report can again highlight both the around Faversham which took place in November memorable one-off outdoor concert staged in Doddington Place Gardens which briefly allowed people to meet (entirely out-of-doors) to make music together (at a suitable enforced pre-vaccine distance) after a long gap. Sadly, this in 2020 had to happen without box office (and, therefore income) or the substantial ticketed audience that it deserved. This was the major work that had been intended for the final 2 concerts of the international festival that summer. But at least some of our soloists and deprived choir-members (albeit only those based in the UK) were able to sing together again.

So, with the support of Richard & Amicia Oldfield who generously threw their magnificent Doddington Place Gardens in Kent open to us for the event, it was at least gratifying that Musique-Cordiale could, even in 2020, enable choir-members to sing together (in a new idyllic setting) after the first lockdown (and it allowed the choir to meet in more modest gardens to eat and drink and share convivial experiences after such activity had been barred for months. No paid-for caterers this year: just repeated home-cooking over 3 days in September! This, with only days to spare, was fortunately legally permissible at the time according to tight social-distancing requirements and risk assessments with only 30 performers and preceded by 2 days of similarly controlled outdoor rehearsals and meals. However, it had to exclude both a significant paying audience as well as the young musicians that the Trust usually supports and benefits from. Also excluded were ALL of the pan-European participants, whose shared involvement is a key theme of Musique-Cordiale gatherings and the raison d'être for the Trust and the association organisations which actually manage events. It was named CORDIALE for a (pan-European) reason.

Consequently, our accounts for this period illustrate diminished throughput of funds in the Trust's coffers during the year in question and this had to continue through 2021 (and indeed 2022). However, in summer 2021, we did manage to help sponsor a 'mini-festival', still limited to Kent and again without any performers or spectators from outside the UK, but this time with a Box Office. This did attract a new enthusiastic local audience in the beautiful Kentish Downs; they arrived with brollies, tables, chairs and picnics and proved remarkably resilient and enthusiastic, ready to adapt to local conditions, including some wet and windy demands of an English summer. But it was impossible to make it profitable even with all the voluntary contributions offered by musicians, organisers and chef/washers-up alike! After the end of restrictions, we have not completely abandoned this new UK audience. We have staged autumn concerts in Faversham in 2022 and 2023; but we have had to apologise to them because re-launching the festival in its original home in France in summer 2023 (with the work and preparations for this starting the previous autumn and winter) has consumed our energies and funds, particularly as public funding for 'culture' there has been significantly reduced AND our flow of cash from donors, especially those outside the UK, has significantly shrunk without the 2020-2022 festivals on the European continent to remind them how much they WANT TO SUPPORT OUR EFFORTS! During all this period,

Summer 2022 Concert en pleine aire in Kent

it is also notable – and a significant impediment for us and for musicians generally - that BREXIT was implemented in a way that, at least for the initial years, made organising a festival and academy in Europe more difficult for us and added to our costs. And all this time, inflation, especially in prices of air-fares and accommodation, has been raging!

Donors were unsurprisingly reticent about supporting music and musicians whose artistry they mostly could witness. And this applied particularly to our established supporters whose main enthusiasm was for the Academies for young musical talent and for the whole idea and experience of pan-European music-making in the summer ambience of Provence that had been the big pull for audiences and players alike for the previous 15 years. Inevitably, with diminished paying audiences and having to operate with constraints (and no public grants) in Kent, our high-quality concerts lacked the well-deserved acclaim and, by definition, the visibility that remained their due. So, the 2021 summer concert series also incurred a deficit to which the Trust could not contribute to the extent that the trustees would normally have wished.... and which unavoidably but significantly landed on the shoulders of its individual organisers and singers, whose generosity and patience must be recognised here.

Musique Cordiale is a major annual international summer music festival begun in 2006 in Provence, France, where it features:

- a Festival Orchestra consisting of professional players drawn from major orchestras and conservatoires across Europe
- a pan-European Festival Choir made up of professional and semi-professional singers with experienced arrangers, who come together twice each year to rehearse and sing together. They usually perform a cappella and then sing a major choral work with orchestra and soloists in two final concerts of the International Festival.
- a selection of talented up-and-coming soloist singers and players
- several small ensembles and solo performers of chamber music, vocal and instrumental recitals, jazz and a little folk and rock.
- an academy for young string players, aged 13 to 20, taught by well-known international players and an accompanist. Students play solo and perform in small ensembles before each sitting next to a professional in orchestra concerts.
- In France for 15 years it has featured a series up to 25 daily evening and daytime concerts, including 7 free, in 6 towns and villages in the Pays de l'Agglo in the south of France.
- 2-3 conductors, a dozen or more soloists and 400+ playing musicians and singers
- 13 or more nationities working together to make music (and enjoy cultural exchange and conviviality in warm and beautiful settings) something we have recently tried our best to match in Kent.
- 10 volunteers working hard in-hand all year long, strengthened by an energetic team of volunteers during the annual festival.
- a large voluntary team-offort all year long to organise the summer and autumn events under the auspices of a not-for-profit organisation, and with support from a UK charity.

The global pandemic caused us to have to cancel the International Festival & Academy in France in the past 3 years but Musique Cordiale has continued with summer and winter concerts on a smaller scale in Kent. It is envisaged that the French festival may resume in 2023 but that concerts in Kent, where we have developed a loyal and enthusiastic following, will also continue in some form too.

Thank you for your support Please see our website if you would like to be involved with Musique Cordiale or if you might like to join the choir in future. Naturally, we also welcome help in the form of voluntary effort (as has to be catered for and accommodated) all playing & singing participants every evening and we value your support in whatever form.

The Mozart Requiem, Vivaldi Gloria & Vivaldi Four Seasons (Emma Parslow, solo violin, Graham Ross conductor) were among the outdoor 2021 highlights of Musique Cordiale in Kent.

However, the outdoor concert experience from 2020-2021 and the special venues for concerts in Kent, including both the outdoor ones in Doddington but also the lovely acoustic (recently restored) Faversham Assembly Rooms did give the organisers the confidence to stage another week-long series of concerts, Musique-Cordiale in Kent, in July-August 2022 in the timeslot usually occupied by the International festival - after it again became clear (and too late after another New Year no-travel lockdown) that the 2022 festival could not happen in France that summer. Before that (in the period just covered by the set of accounts that featured in our 2022 annual report), it did also prove possible to stage a delightful pair of December 2021 concerts in Faversham, including a rousing performance of Handel's Dixit Dominus. This and the associated 2 days of rehearsal finally achieved a full-house (within Covid limits) and our first set of events in 2 years that did not lose money! However, the proceeds were inevitably not enough to offset the accumulated deficits for the organisers (who contributed considerable funds of their own, enabling Musique-Cordiale to survive into 2022 to live another day - with support from long-standing choir-singers and association members and what limited funds the Trust did scabble together). These featured some extraordinarily high-quality performances, especially by talented young instrumentalists, including several new (to us) young players as well as by established but, still, mainly only UK-based orchestra members. So, in 2022, we were able to report, once again, on another one-week Kent-based summer festival of excellent music-making, 2-13 August 2022, for choir, small orchestral ensemble and soloists, again directed by Graham Ross and the team led by music director, Pippa Pawlik, ably and enthusiastically supported by a new generation of players who worked very hard and inventively to make it happen. This culminated in a performance of Le Petit Messe Solennelle by Rossini. A larger Musique-Cordiale Ensemble also performed what was intended to be a self-financing "Last Night of the Proms" concert for the Queen's Jubilee on 4 June 2022. It ended up being a great and much-enjoyed outdoor concert. But its initial (pub car park) venue was cancelled less than a month before it could happen and we moved this too to Doddington Place Gardens at the last moment - for which, as we had agreed with them over previous months of planning, we bought a tent, did some (inadequate rushed) publicity and paid the musicians in full. By actually putting the concert on regardless of the cancellation by the venue, we reduced the loss for the day from £14,800 to a 'mere' £8,500! Our individual organisers have had to write off this sum personally and it has not accrued to either the association or the Trust.

Meanwhile, we can here report on the popularity of the summer 'mini-festival' in 2022. In the end, it was, force majeure, still in Kent (and again covered its costs only with a big financial input from the organisers and a healthy grant from local Henry Oldfield Trust). It is with relief – but still insufficient funds, though the finances in France are always on a larger scale on both sides of the balance sheet, we can now continue to report here on 2 successful (though very hot) subsequent festivals in France as we tell our supporters, many of whom re-emerged to buy tickets and season-passes, about the renaissance of the International Festival in the Pays de Fayence in France, 3-12 August 2023 (though largely without the accompanying Academy, in what we can proudly proclaim was our 19th series of concerts and festivals each year since 2005. And this time, notwithstanding a bit of a false start, this began to feature a "New Generation" team of musicians and organisers contributing significantly to the (voluntary) pre-season work of planning and organising as well as helping to manage the festival on site! Given the financial situation and the need to conserve funds and appetites for 2023, the organisers decided not to stage concerts in Autumn 2022 though we did put on a weekend, successfully, in November 2023 to keep local appetites whetted in Kent!

It had, in those intervening years in England, been especially rewarding to have a live audience enjoying the concerts, particularly again in Doddington Place Gardens in Kent, where the weather did intermittently but eventually allow 3 popular concerts to take place in magnificent surroundings as the evening sun faded dramatically, and more indoors in Newnham, Doddington and Faversham, where we have earned new loyal audiences during the pandemic years. In doing so, Musique-Cordiale was able, in 2022, to celebrate having put on festivals and concerts for 18 uninterrupted years, a feat that made us relatively rare in those pandemic times, albeit that the past 2 years had not been the same and notably lacked too many of our loyal supporters and participants and lacked the pan-European appeal. These performances in our 17th year, in Faversham and the Kentish Downs, included the Mozart Requiem and Vivaldi's Four Seasons, the latter of which we have subsequently performed again, with different artists and in versions by 2 contrasting composers, in the open-air amphitheatre in Fayence in 2023 and in the church in Bagnols-en-Forêt on the penultimate night of the festival in 2024. The big choral work performed, twice each, in 2023 and 2023 were, respectively, Oratorios of Handel and Mozart and Mozart's Coronation Mass, fitting for the year of 2023, and the glorious Requiem by Verdi in Seillans church, for which we also staged a performance in the Anglican church in Menton near the Italian-French border beside the Mediterranean. During the most recent Festival, our 20th, 30 July – 10 August 2024, Musique-Cordiale also semi-staged 2 opera performances of Verdi's La Traviata beside the bell-tower in Turrettes and we were able to open up a remarkable new venue for another outdoor performance of the Requiem in a new public park beside the old (disused since 1948) railway station in Seillans. There, on another hot Provençal evening, we also put on a packed-out concert of French songs featuring a Dutch-French vocalist and Dutch musical ensemble (see the concert programme for the 2023 and 2024 festivals for details). The station platform and canopy provided a memorable backdrop to the concerts there and will be used again in 2025 for suitable outdoor musical events where the warm ambience and the ability to bring wine and a picnic will make it especially inviting.

There was no Academy again in 2024 and we have decided not to attempt an autumn reprise in Kent this year. If events in France prove viable under a changed management team in 2025, we may be able, once again to address, within our limited resources, the full range of the ambitious goals of the Trust, supporting the French association and the aspirations of young players and singers from all over Europe, to the extent that proves affordable. Our goals remain to help to access to education and to encourage cultural exchange between talented young musicians and among a wider public in Britain and Europe.

The accounts for the years ending 30 November 2022 and 2023 appear' together with the most recent accounts for 2024' on the following 2 pages. (These have been reported separately to the Charity Commission but published together—and comparatively—here). They illustrate the degree of the post-pandemic emergency re-emergence of Musique-Cordiale in these recent years. They also show the relatively minor but useful contributory role of the Trust and the donors to it in the financing of the International Festival when it takes place in its fuller form in the Pays de Fayence, France. [NOTE: There was a failure of the Charity Commission website in late 2023 which resulted in a delay in being able to deposit our accounts there on time though the accounts were ready and we corresponded and registered that we were trying to do so—with the Commission about this at the time. Unfortunately, this resulted in a mislabelling of the Trust as a late defaulter in submitting account to 30 Nov 2022. Submissions have been well on time since then].

Consequently, the accounts in this annual report document the state of the Trust finances over the 3 most recent full years of operation, including those previously submitted and report in our past 2 annual reports. With a little history and background, they therefore represent the current state of the accounts of the Trust at the end of November 2024. (The separate consolidated accounts for the festival, incorporating the French non-profit association. Are published annually after the end of their district accounting years).

What these accounts illustrate most of all is that music and arts do not attract huge grants or funding from public or private sources in Britain—though choir-singing and amateur playing are among activities that attract large numbers of voluntary enthusiasts. The kind of high-quality classical and choral performance by top choirs and by professional musicians does attract audiences for some Classic FM-type concerts and Musique-Cordiale tend to emulate this approach and to try to tap this enthusiasm while also try to put money and challenging experiences and opportunities in the way of young talented players, conductors and singers, for whom many avenues have narrowed in recent years. We invite our supporters and adherents and those who witness our performances or who look at our site and programmes or read our annual reports to SUPPORT US and also specifically to DONATE TIME OR MONEY if you can, to Musique Cordiale in all its forms and, especially if you are UK taxpayer, to contribute to The Musique-Cordiale Trust—and, if your situation matches the requirements, to make a suitable Gift Aid declaration to add to the benefits of your generosity to us. A declaration form follows after the accounts. THANK YOU!

If you have any questions or issues with this report or with the accounts, please contact us via the website of the Trust or the separate site of the Festival (www.musique-cordiale.com) or by email to: finance@m-c-trust.org.

years nor still in the current year). We do need to be imaginative in seeking to raise such vital

A performance of Haydn's Seasons, played by a pan-European orchestra and sung, this time, in German, conducted by Graham Ross, director of music at Clare College, Cambridge, after a week of rehearsal of this and other a Capella works. The engagement of the course director and rehearsal accompanist as well as travel for British players and teachers was paid for by a grant from support. We hope that those of you who value our activities will find ways to give in whatever ways your resources allow! The Coronavirus crisis in 2020-22 hit music-makers of all kinds especially hard. The careers of many talented young musicians remain at risk, their education has been threatened, the organisers of events and the managers of music venues are still threatened with overwhelming costs and a catastrophic decline of adequate income or opportunities. Charities like the Musique-Cordiale Trust are consuming all their insufficient resources to minimise the impact. But these accounts illustrate how much they (we) need support from lovers of music who want to see classical music and those who perform it survive, recover and thrive.

The charity operates on very limited admin costs of its own. Publicity, the web-site and the grants awarded represent its main expenditure. Banking with the CAF (Charities Aid Foundation) Bank has resulted in a low-cost, appropriate and good-value service. The charity continues, both now and at 30 November 2023, to hold more assets than liabilities though, with a margin, the trustees are likely to spend most of what it receives.

All of the income of The Musique-Cordiale Trust is non-profit, including donations and Gift Aid reimbursements of income tax paid by qualifying donors. Most income is either the result of individual generosity or the result of approaches made by the Trust and its trustees to other charities. There is a small additional income from the Give as You Live scheme operated by many online shops who donate a proportion of the value of relevant sales to the Trust. We are enormously grateful to our donors and especially both to a few big contributors as well as the loyal group of regular subscribers and Friends, especially those who reduce our costs and work and pay by direct debit and/or who contribute through the tax-efficient Gift Aid scheme. Without all of them none of our goals could be met.

Expenditure by the Trust is listed by category in the accounts. No trustee receives any payment for their services and, including the independent examiner of the accounts, no other individual has received payment for accounting services. All expenditure including items listed separately (accountancy, Bank charges, Legal, web-site & email) was individually approved by properly constituted and minuted meetings of the trustees. This applies no less precisely in the category of Grants & Bursaries paid. The individuals who have received funds from the charity are all musicians, students, teachers or conductors or those providing essential services (including venues, travel, accommodation, food, light, recording equipment etc. that enable them to perform). These constitute the main thrust of the Trust's approved expenditure, Grants and Bursaries. Other beneficiaries are the French (charitable) association which runs the Festival & Academy, various churches, school and providers of venues, enterprises which rent or sell sheet music and airlines or trains which transported students and musicians. Support for admin expenses (mainly part-time, short-term salaries for the young team which manages some events) has been another vital element – and one that it has proved especially hard to finance from other sources.

Policies: The Trust has no investment income apart from bank interest and does not hold any custodian funds. It is developing new fund-raising, trustee appointment, risk management and safeguarding policies, which will be published on its website in late 2024. Its published constitution and its grant-making criteria are unchanged since they were submitted to the Charity Commission in the process of applying for registration as a charity (CIO). After the initial 18-month report (published in 2018), this and future annual reports and accounts cover the 12 months to 30 November each year. There have been no changes to the Trustees, except for one recent resignation by someone who lives abroad and felt he could no longer make a useful contribution, nor the goals, focus or intended public benefit of The Trust since incorporation and none are envisaged. We are currently seeking to recruit new trustees and have received a couple of encouraging nominations. If these result in new appointments, they will be announced on the Trust website as soon as possible.

Thank you to everyone, including our volunteers, donors and trustees for their efforts and support!

Personnel & a Personal announcement

As announced in the course of the festival this summer, Pippa Pawlik, after 20 years as founder, artistic director and musical driving force of the Musique-Cordiale International Festival, intends to withdraw from the frontline ahead of the 2025 festival - though will doubtless be considerably involved as the new team takes on the mantle (which they had already begun to do this summer). I am also proposing to withdraw, especially as a personal funder of the festival and as a year-round hands-on worker. But new arrangements for managing the things I have been responsible for are somewhat less clear at present though they are under development over the autumn and winter to ensure continuity. I will in any case retain my roles through the end of the current relevant financial years - and be available to support the new team, including possible/necessary new people, thereafter.

We do propose to hand the management of the ASSOCIATION to Aidan Coburn, Rebecca Taylor and some others TBC with effect from the association's AGM in January 2025. They are already members of its Conseil d'Administration.

I am proposing to continue indefinitely with my present role in the TRUST and hope that we will retain existing committed talent among the trustees (minus David Christie who has resigned) while adding a couple of other more engaged people with capabilities and suitable potential inputs, We will update you on these developments—and report them to the Charity Commission and also to the French authorities in the Var soon.

Above is an orchestral concert in Seillans in the Pays de Fayence, France, conducted by James Lowe in 2019. Along with other teachers, conductors and accompanists, his participation in this event, which included professional musicians as well as Academy students sitting beside them, an established feature of the Musique Cordiale programme of education and cultural exchange to which we are pleased to have been able to return after the pandemic years, during which events (without Academy but including Academy alumni as players) were only (just) possible in the UK and largely devoid of its normal and quintessential pan-European dimension which has been a core feature of Musique-Cordiale since its inception in 2005.. The second larger photo is of the choral concert in August 2024: a performance of the Verdi Requie conducted by Graham Ross with the Musique-Cordiale Festival Orchestra & Choir with soloists, which, including 3 years in Kent, GB and 17 years in the Pays de Fayence in the Var, Provence, France was the closing event of the 20th annual International Musique-Cordiale Festival, in 2024.
